Significance & objectives of the programme

NEP 2023 emphasizes on holistic and multidisciplinary education. It envisages a system where there is no distinction between rural and urban areas and all aspiring students have access to quality education. It also proposes several measures to improve the quality of teaching, such as, teacher professional development programmes, and teacher education programmes at all levels. It seeks to provide greater autonomy to education institutions and promote academic mobility. The new system is student-centric, where all subjects' education is reduced to its core essentials. It is necessary to create an awareness regarding changing educational trends amongst academicians in architecture. This TTP intends to create a platform for awareness, open discussions, brainstorming sessions and sharing of knowledge of accreditation processes and new education policies. It also will motivate and guide participants to blend the new learnings learnt through these discussions, into current systems of architectural education.

Topics to be covered

1. Implication of NEP in Architecture
2. Curriculum development based on NEP
3. Canberra Accord
4. Accreditation processes in architecture
5. Preparedness for accreditation processes of architecture institutes
