The heritage is a valuable and irreplaceable resource from which a large section of the population derives enjoyment and inspiration. But it is a fact that most of the heritage properties whether it is tangible or intangible, natural or cultural are undocumented. In this scenario, it is significant to encourage the student architects to put their effort and interest in documentation of heritage properties. Architectural documentation is only a part of the syllabus of the subject, conservation which is again an elective in most of the institutes in under graduate courses. The program aims to train the faculty to deliver proper guidance in documentation projects.

Objectives of the course are :

1. To introduce the concept of heritage as a discipline.
2. To make awareness about the need for documentation
3. To introduce different techniques used for documentation.
4. To explore emerging tools in documentation.
